Protests Doom Street Lights and Playground

Brooks and R. J. Deininger assured the citizens repeatedly that the written protests would receive fair and impartial consideration.

Motives of Trustees
It was made plain that the trustees proposed the lighting system in response to repeated demands from citizens and that the proceedings were instituted with a desire to ascertain the desires of the public. "We have found out," said Trustees Brooks, "and you may be sure that we will govern ourselves accordingly."

Objections to the proposed paving of Redondo Boulevard centered almost entirely on the manner in which it is proposed to assess property to pay for the improvement. There were not as many written or verbal protests against the paving as there were against the lights.

It Gets Hot
On several occasions during the two-hour discussion the meeting waxed unusually warm, as three or four of the more vehement protestors questioned the motives of city officials in proposing improvements.

In the heat of the discussion DeKalb Spurin rose and requested the board to withdraw his name from the petition protesting against lights.

After the "verbal communications" the board unanimously decided to call off the bond election set for June 16 for the purpose of voting on a proposal to bond for $30,000 to purchase and develop the tract at Carson Street and Plaza del Amo for recreational center purposes.

Mrs. George Hopkins and son Fred, of Engracia Avenue, attended the Memorial Day exercises at the Coliseum in Los Angeles Saturday, and from there went to the All New England picnic at Sycamore Grove. On Sunday they visited with friends at Santa Ana.

Seek Easement at Highway Crossing Over P. E. Tracks

The Board of Trustees referred to the engineer and city attorney a recommendation from the City Planning Commission that an easement for a crossing over the Pacific Electric tracks on Redondo Boulevard from Post Avenue to Border Avenue be secured from the railroad company. The company has agreed to give the easement if the city will bear part of the expense of installing new rails prior to the paving of the crossing. The company owns the right of way in fee. The improvement of the crossing would eliminate a bottle-neck entrance to Redondo Boulevard, and is considered essential if that highway is improved through to the western city limits.

W. T. Klusman and City Engineer in Clash on Grading
Claiming that no dirt was removed from the alley at the rear of his lot on Cravens Avenue, W. T. Klusman objected to the Board of Trustees last night against the assessment against the property for alley paving. Mr. Klusman's written communication declared that he was charged with grading to the extent of $81.25, but that no grading work was done.

City Engineer J. J. Jessup showed the board his surveying field notes and contour maps and asserted that he himself did the surveying and that the alley was graded. His notes showed that from three to five feet of dirt had been removed from the alley in the rear of the lot. Although the date for protesting assessments had passed, the board referred the matter to the street committee for investigation and assured Mr. Klusman that if he had been charged for grading that was not done he would be reimbursed.

The assertions of Mr. Jessup and Mr. Klusman were entirely at variance. Mr. Jessup said that the man who operated the steam shovel declares that grading was done behind the Klusman property.

The Story of the Big Tough Chicken and the Red Wheel

Once upon a time there was a big chicken that had lived so long that his owner decided he was good for nothing but to crow and eat corn. But one day there was delivered at the owner's house a new gas range that had attached to the side of the oven a little RED WHEEL. With the new gas range came a direction book that told how the little red wheel could be used to make the toughest kind of meats sweet and tender, when cooked in the oven with the red wheel. So, the owner killed the big tough chicken and baked him in the oven. And lo and behold! The whole family, from grand-daddy with his false teeth to Audrey who didn't even have all her first set, proclaimed the big tough chicken to be the best meat they'd ever enjoyed.

Come in today and see these wonderful ranges at the office of the
